

WE ARE ALONE NOW

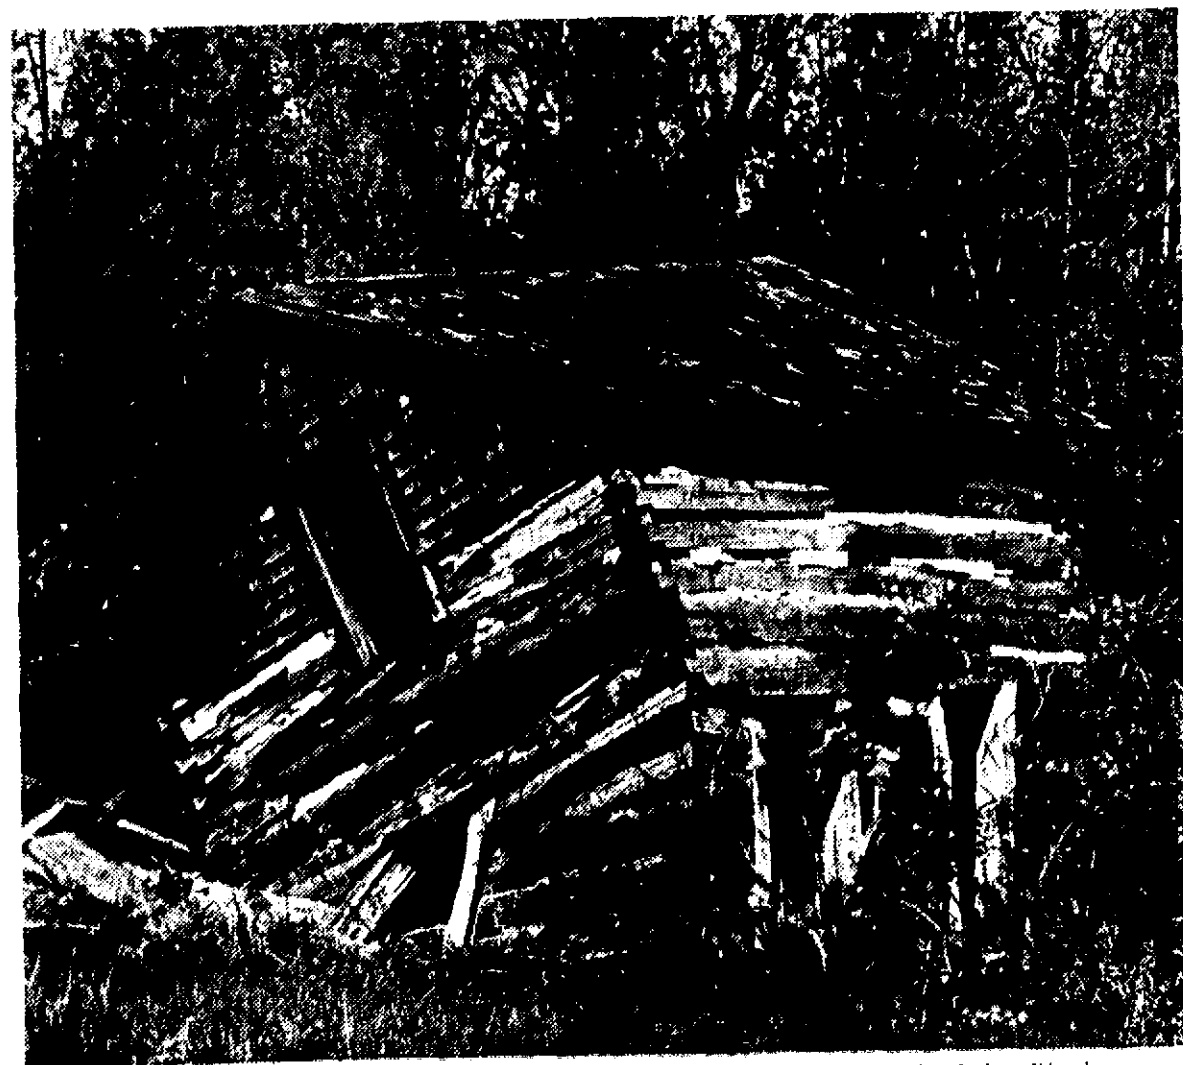

We hear no noise, we who once felt laughter and glad cries in our midst as copper-mining men walked among us. We stand in sagging glory, old old lives passed over by time in its weathering chill. There is nothing for us left now but the wind, whispering through our fallen hearts. Our sounds of dying carry sadly to unlistening ears beyond the horizon.

We talk together in the shadow of our strongest, yet only dismal mumblings come forth. Our veins are pitted ruin, our minds too weary as slowly we topple into piled hurt. None come here to bring us life again, none have since long ago in 1921.

We hear the meadows rustle beyond, yet no foot crosses to us; shadows caress our tired souls, yet the sun warms us no longer; days pass, one upon the other, yet no hand comes to raise us again.

We are tired, we in Michigan who once were called Victoria, built by Man's sweat to be deserted in our prime. We are tired and very much forsaken in this, the hushed silence which is our whole being. We are alone now.

Prince Has Passed His School Exams

By EDDY GILMORE
LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles, whose extracurricular activities often outshine his scholarship, has passed his examinations—Hurray!
This heartening news was spread to British newspapers, radio and television stations today in a bulletin which said: "Satisfied—Prince Charles has passed his A-level examinations in history and French, the Press Association learned today."

Snapful is a tag the national agency puts on news of major importance or unusual interest. "Learned today" is a roundabout British way of protecting news sources such as Buckingham Palace, or the board that presided over his royal highness' examinations.

The 19-year-old heir to the throne enters Trinity College at Cambridge University next month.

A-level exams are the examinations British students take in seeking entrance to universities. Two passes generally get you in.

Charles got a "B" in history, and just scraped through with a "C" in French. The only thing worse than a "C" is a "D", which means you flunked.

The announcement said Charles passed with "distinction" in an optional special paper he wrote on history.

Charles took the exams earlier this year while a student at Gordonstoun, his Scottish school.

Well before the result of the examinations were known, it was announced that the prince would enter Cambridge this autumn. Lord Butler, head of Trinity, explained that as Queen Elizabeth II's eldest son would not seek a degree, he would enter Cambridge whether he flunked his exams or not.

Avoiding lese majeste, Lord Butler didn't use the word flunk, but that's what he meant.

At school Charles' scholarship was hardly brilliant. He was weak in mathematics and English, but he was outstanding in music and dramatics.

He mastered the cello, guitar and singing, and did better than well on the drums.

Since leaving school he has been outstanding on the polo field, playing mostly on Sundays, which got him an editorial rocket today from a cleric in rural Sussex.

Writing in his parish magazine, the Rev. Eric Land said: "We see Prince Charles is not only watching sport on Sunday but is now actually playing it. Some day he will be king. Goodness knows what new depths he will have sunk to by then."

Young bachelor in the office says he's fed-up with single bliss. All he gets out of life is room and bored.

Wedding Vows Are Repeated

MRS. CHARLES LEE BROWN

In a candlelight service at the First Baptist Church in Hope, Miss Carol Ann Taylor and Charles Lee Brown exchanged their marriage vows at 7:30 p.m. August 18.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Taylor, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Brown, all of Hope.

Lighted tapers, white stock, gladiolas and cascades of southern smilax provided the background for the double ring ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Harold Hightower of Little Rock. Extending the length of the sanctuary adorning either side, were also lighted tapers and smilax.

Mrs. Arthur Stretch provided the nuptial music at the organ while Dr. Lowell Harris served as soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a floor length gown of Chantilly lace and silk organza in traditional white. The fitted bodice was fashioned with an oval neckline embroidered in seed pearls and sequins. The empire waistline was accentuated with a bow of silk organza. The long sleeves ended in points over her hands. The skirt was fashioned in an A line. The Chantilly lace train swept from the bride's shoulders to a cathedral length. Her four tiered veil of silk illusion fell to elbow length from a crown of Chantilly lace, white pearls, and sequins. Around her neck, the bride wore a diamond drop which was a gift of the groom.

The wedding bouquet of fleur d' amour and stephanotis was centered with an orchid.

The four candle lighters who lighted the fourteen candelabras, the tapers extending the altar and baptistery spacer were Joe Mac Young, Miss Karen Britt, both of Hope; Miss Clarissa Ann Hightower, William Hightower, both of Little Rock. All are cousins of the bride.

Mrs. Winston Duke of Arkadelphia, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. The Goza of Oklahoma City, Okla., niece of the groom. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Mike Allen, Mrs. Jack Caldwell, Misses Rose Ann Williams, and Diane Ellis, all of Hope; Miss Judy Glenn of Dallas, Texas; and Miss Suzie Tindler of Ft. Smith. Their mint green identical floor length gowns accented at the neckline and sleeves with yellow and green lace were complemented by bouquets of yellow palm mums. In their hair, the attendants wore mint green open pill box hats, accented with a large bow and veil.

Mr. Sam F. Brown of Little Rock served his brother as best man. Ring bearer was Lewis Scott Goza of Oklahoma City, Okla., nephew of the groom. Groomsman were Messrs Jack Caldwell, Larry Moore, both of Hope; Jim French of Hot Springs; Bob Thornton of Camden; Hugh Jones of Blytheville; Johnny Simpson of El Dorado.

Ushers for the evening were Messrs Leonard Young of Hope, cousin of the bride; Winston Duke, of Arkadelphia, brother-in-law of the groom; Ronny Taylor of Ft. Worth, Texas, cousin of the bride; Mike Allen of Emmet.

Mrs. Taylor, the bride's mother, was attired in a beige lace and chiffon dress with matching accessories. Mrs. Brown, mother of the bridegroom, chose a yellow silk dress with matching accessories. Their corsages were cymbidium orchids. Mrs. Cue McAdams grandmother of the bride, wore a blue linen with lace trim dress, and her flowers were white carnations.

Mrs. Harold Hightower of Little Rock was director of the wedding for the evening.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the First Baptist Church.

The bride's table was lovely in its floor length cloth of green taffeta overlaid in mint green net, centered with a silver epergne containing shasta daisies and yellow palm mums. The edge of the table was accented in various places with fern and palm mums.

The groom's table was an oval shaped and covered with a floor length cloth of black silk organza with gold dots. Ball fringe edged the cloth. Yellow palm mums and daisies centered the table.

Mrs. Travis Ward greeted the guests and introduced them to the receiving line. In charge of the bride's book was Mrs. Sam F. Brown of Little Rock. Rice bags were distributed by Misses Lori Britt and Molly Stretch.

Others assisting in the reception were Mrs. John Britt, Mrs. George Young, Mrs. M.S. Bates, Mrs. Mary Moore, Mrs. Carter Russell, Mrs. Bess Evans, Mrs. Wilson Britt, Mrs. Richard Arnold, Mrs. Jack Fielding, Mrs. Leonard Ellis, Miss Linda Britt, Miss Ann Arnold, Mrs. Rufus Herndon Jr., all of Hope; Mrs. Lewis F. Goza of Oklahoma City; Mrs. Dwight Bailey of Houston, Texas; Mrs. Theo T. King and Mrs. R.T. Churchill of Hot Springs, Mrs. Leo Best of Tulsa, Okla.; Mrs. Johnny Britt of Texarkana; Mrs. Albert Drewry of Fayetteville; Misses Joan Thompson of Augusta; Linda Prince of Lincoln; Joan Foster of North Little Rock.

For travel the bride wore a gold, white, and black checked suit accented with black patent accessories, and the orchid from her bridal bouquet complemented her ensemble.

After a wedding trip to the Gulf, the couple will reside in Fayetteville, where the bride will teach in the Lincoln School system. The groom, a member of Sigma Nu fraternity, will be a senior at the University of Arkansas.

TV Notebook

By JOAN CROSBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The network may be calling its premiere time NBC Week, but a look at the schedule suggests it should be called Raymond Burr Month.

His new series, Ironside, premieres on NBC-TV on Sept. 14. It will be preceded, on Sept. 2, by the rerun of the World Premiere movie, also called Ironside, which was the series pilot. On Oct. 6, viewers will see a different side of the actor on Raymond Burr Visits Vietnam.

Burr, probably one of television's most popular actors, is a humanitarian. He cares. Over the years he has made many unpublicized visits to Vietnam. He only allowed these visits to be publicized when he realized other entertainers might be inspired to follow his example.

Now, back in his Hollywood dressing room between takes on his new series, he is smiling and relaxed. "I'm lovin' this series," he said. "It's just great. You know, just recently I was saying that if a friend of mine was going to do a series in which the title was a man's or woman's name, I would say, 'Don't.' If you're in something called Bonanza or The Big Valley, you can escape. But if you're in a series that bears the name of the character you play, and it flops, you're in trouble."

Burr, out from under the Perry Mason image and much happier than he was in the latter days of that series ("I was in a plane on my way to the South Pacific 45 minutes after the last Perry Mason shot"), found it easy to break his own rule when he was offered Ironside. In it, he plays a detective confined to a wheelchair.

"That wheel chair is getting real kicky for me," he smiles. "I may give up walking."

Pipe Woes of Doodletowners

By DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Irving Mansfield has acquired rights to the name "Shubert Alley" and is preparing a television show—either a special or a series—around the title. . . . Dick Bock of World Pacific records says that suddenly the big bands are making it on records, after all these years of two guitars, a drum and a scream. Bock says Buddy Rich's band is leading the way. . . . Steve Franken reportedly steals "The Party" from under Peter Sellers' talented nose, playing a waiter who gets progressively drunker as the night wears on. . . . John Mills' wife, Mary Hayley Bell, is twiddling away the hours while he does his Dundee and the Culhane series by writing her autobiography.

Behind that smooth-as-silk facade that makes the Doodletown Pipers such fun to watch lurks a few problems you might not have thought of.

Ward Ellis and George Wilkins, who run the group, and Jill McDonald and Holly Mershon, who doodle in it, talked about some of the difficulties with a unit of that size and age.

There is, primarily, the sheer weight of numbers—20 people divided equally by sex. That means, for one thing, they can't afford to play in your neighborhood coffeehouses—they must work only the big clubs which have budgets large enough to meet the payroll.

"If we don't make it in the big clubs," the bearded Ellis says, "we don't make it."

There is also the problem of clothes, the outfits they wear. It's especially hard to find costumes that all 10 girls look good in, and like besides.

In age, the Doodletown Pipers range from 18 to 22, with a few old-timers of 23 thrown in. They want to keep that youthful appearance, yet they don't feel it would be fair to eliminate the more mature ones just when they are beginning to make it. It's a Doodletown dilemma.

There is also the natural biological problem of love. At the moment, two of the boys are married to "outsiders," there are one married couple, two engaged couples and another "going together." That takes care of 50 per cent of the group.

They'd better make an arrangement of "Here Comes the Bride."

Consider, for just one nonproductive moment, Claudia Cardinale's ears. (They're up there, Mac.) Claudia says they used to give her a lot of worry.

Claudia, now shooting "A Time For Heroes" with Rod Taylor at Universal, says that as a child she was terribly self-conscious about her ears. She thought they stuck out too much.

But then she grew up and found that what happened to the rest of her made her ears lose their importance.

"It's been many years," she says, with a smile, "since anyone has noticed my ears."

In case you've been thinking of teaching your child to swim this summer, here's a tip from John Gary. The singer, besides his great musical talent, is a fine swimmer and a record-holder in the field of submergence. John says a child's father—not its mother public is more understanding than a lot of executives in a cinemaland.

It has been Jerry's misfortune to have been connected with one of the worst television series (My Mother the Car). It is his further misfortune that some executives have the word "flop" mentally listed alongside his name, forgetting that such things as premise, writing and production were not of his doing.

Optimists in the business believe the public has more sense and realizes Jerry was the hapless and blameless actor.

Now coming back in a more promising series, he would like to be forgiven for the first.

Accidental Family premieres on NBC-TV Sept. 15. In it, Jerry plays a widowed night club entertainer who suddenly finds himself leading a second life—that of a farmer with a small, and resentful, son. The show's executive producer is Sheldon Leonard, always a big plus.

Jerry was offered four pilots after his other series. "There were a couple of Tarzan take-offs there," he said. "All I need is another gimmick. I wouldn't have taken another gimmick show under any circumstances."

Jerry will play a normal man in sometimes trying circumstances. "He won't be a goof-up. We're not going for jokes. I am playing a real person who has problems and is mature. It's the way I am. I develop a character on stage—it's what every comic does. But off stage I'm a fairly serious guy."

"You know, I guess people do remember the good things. Whenever I go on the road, I'm told 'We liked you on The Dick Van Dyke Show.' That was a two-parter four years ago. They have forgotten those other things like My Mother the Car and The Judy Garland Show."

Bat's Life Expectancy For their size, bats are unusually long-lived animals because of the large proportion of their lives spent in hibernation. Some have lived as long as 21 years.

—should be the teacher. He goes even further.

"The mother should stay out of sight during the lesson," he says, "because a child instinctively cries out for its mother when it gets dunked."

FOOTLOOSE AND FANCY FREEWAY—Ravi Shankar, the great Indian musician, has been giving George Harrison lessons on India's ancient instrument, the star. And he is high in his praise of the Beatles' attitude. "Most people," Shankar says, "think learning the sitar is just for amusement. But George is different from most. To see how humble that person is, to see how sincere he is, is a joy to me."

A humble Beatle? Next we'll have a chic hippie.

Bill Bixby is one of the few actors you can talk to about serious things, seriously. He's now shooting "Speedway" with Elvis Presley and maybe that's why, but we had a long talk about politics and riots and such.

Bixby thinks it is "morally wrong" for actors to enter politics—they have an unfair advantage because of their training and emotional attachment of their fans.

"It's one thing," he says, "for an actor to ask the public to buy a particular brand of aspirin, but when he asks you to vote for him, that's something else again. That affects people's lives and the lives of millions all over the state or the world."

He thinks if an actor feels strongly about public affairs, he should work behind the scenes where he can accomplish something without using his skills to influence people's votes.

Bill Reynolds, the new agent on the FBI series this year, was actually in the original presentation of the series.

"But that first concept," he says, "had a romance for the agent with Lynn Loring, and they felt I was a little long in the tooth for that part."

Now that the romance has been written out, Bill Reynolds has been written back in.

Jeff Hunter, suddenly hot, has offers of films in London, Israel, Madrid and Rome—but the chances are he'll take the London offer, because Sally Ann Howes is there and Jeff's heart went thataway. . . . Johnny Carson has become a big astronomy buff. . . . While he's working Las Vegas, every night he goes out and peers at the stars through his telescope. . . . One star looking at the others. . . . Omar Sharif, who has already recorded his songs for "Funny Girl," says he was surprised how well they turned out. . . . "I never even sang in the shower before," he says.

A strange, tragic story from Jimmie Rodgers. As a youth in his home town, Camas, Wash., he sang around town with a quartet. "A few years ago," Jimmie says, "one of them fell overboard while fishing and drowned. Last year, another one was killed by a hoodlum in San Francisco. Three years ago, I heard that the other fellow dropped dead of a heart attack."

Rudy Diaz, the ex-Los Angeles police man now an actor in "Mackenna's Gold," has long been friendly with many movie stars. When he heard he was going to Page, Ariz., to shoot this movie, he asked around among his friends about the town.

"Edgar Buchanan had worked in Page," Rudy says. "and I asked him what there was to do there. Edgar said, 'Well, Rudy, on Sunday you go to the ice cream store and watch people eat ice cream cones. Then you have one yourself, but eat it very slowly because, when it's finished, that's all there is to do.'"

Dear Readers: Letters telling why—"Fathers are Nice Guys Too" are still coming in, though it's long past Father's Day. So much response about a pretty much unsung hero proves he deserves another full column—and what better time than Independence Day. Don't ask me why—I just somehow think the Fourth of July should be a time for praising Pop. Forthwith:

Dear Helen: A father is someone you can run to when you're afraid.

He is someone who says you look beautiful even when your hair is in curlers.

He spends five hours building your little brother's playhouse, who after the first day forgets all about it. He climbs the tree and helps you get your kite or your kitten down. He helps with homework when he is supposed to be relaxing. He can fix anything.

Best of all, he loves you!—FROM SAN ANSELMO

Dear Helen: Fathers are a sad lot, when sonny wants to borrow the car—if there is gas in the tank and he can have five bucks besides.

They're a worried breed, too, when daughter is out past midnight, or wife says, "Guess what dear, I think I'm expecting."

Ever watch how silly they act when their football team is ahead?

You can talk your head off and they never listen. But just whisper a secret two rooms away and they hear every word.

They don't slather on the compliments, but you know just the same that they're proud. They're like the steaks they barbecue—crusty on the outside, tender on the inside.

Selfish and generous, stupid and smart, big-headed and understanding. Fathers are the best!—MARIE

Dear Helen: When Dad scolds us, we feel like jumping back at him, but because he's our father we go sit in our room and pout. While there, we have time to think:

First: "He sure is mean!"

Second: "Well, we did something wrong."

Third: "Maybe he was right to get mad."

Fourth: "He scolded us because he loves us."

Fifth: "We sure do love him!"

Sixth: "He sure is wonderful."

What I mean is, Dad is such a great guy that being bawled out by him isn't so bad.—THE JOHN-SON SISTERS

Dear Helen: I think my Dad is greatest because he buys us sundae and pop when he knows we shouldn't have them, and takes us to carnivals and likes kids big and small and has lots of patience—and he scolds us when we've been bad.—P.K.C., AGE 11

Dear Helen: I wish I could relive all my 17 years simply to catch all the wonderful little things my father did for me that I didn't notice. A dad is the first man in a girl's life and heart, and remains there always.—BOB-BIE

Dear Helen: I've got the wonderfullest and activist father in the world. P.S. My mother is pretty wonderful too.—DIANA

Dear Helen: Since my mother died, my father has been both mother and father to us, and he is A-okay.—THE THREE

Dear Helen: Dad is the guy who is brave enough to go camping with 30 Brownies, and take his daughters to the airport to see the Dave Clark Five when they were the rage.

He takes us camping most every week-end when most fathers just want to get AWAY from their kids on holidays. No matter how much work he brings home to do, he always has time to help us with Math and Science—but he is no speller. That makes him human.—LAURIE

Consultation on Problems Benefits You and Dentist

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: My dentist says I need lots of dental work. Practically my whole mouth needs rebuilding—6 crowns, some extractions and a lower partial denture. I've been going to my dentist for many years, and I trust him and want him to do the work, but it's such a big investment in time, money and worry, I'd like to get another opinion. How can I do this without embarrassing or even antagonizing him?

A—If your dentist is trying to do what's best for you, and if he's an honest fellow, knowledgeable in his work and experienced with all the problems involved, he'll welcome the opportunity of sharing responsibility with a consultant. He won't be embarrassed and certainly won't get mad.

Many dentists take the initiative and insist on consultations before complicated dental reconstruction work is undertaken. The periodontist, orthodontist, oral surgeon and endodontist are frequently asked for advice.

But if you seek advice, do it properly. Be honest and direct about it. Tell your dentist what you've told me. Assuming he has performed all necessary diagnostic procedures, such as study models, full mouth X-rays, complete history and examination, ask him to send them to the consultant you choose. In this way you will avoid duplication of these procedures, saving time, money and unnecessary exposure to X ray.

The benefit of consultation is that it provokes a dialogue between dentists, ideally resulting in better diagnosis and treatment planning. This should be followed by complete patient understanding of what will be done, how long it will take, how much money it will cost and what prognosis can be expected.

Will Design a Sewage Plant

NEW YORK (AP) — The city has hired Philip Johnson, a distinguished architect more accustomed to cultural complexes and exposition halls, to design a $70 million sewage disposal plant. He says he's thinking about dressing it up with fountains and ornamental pools.

Johnson, who designed the New York State Theatre at Lincoln Center and the New York State Pavilion at the New York World's Fair, said he planned to cover the plant's 22-acre roof with pools and a system that will spray jets of water 200 feet into the air.

Except The LORD Build The HOUSE They Labor In Vain That Build It

HAVE

Planning

Most of us understand the importance of good materials, proper location of heating units and well arranged rooms, when we are to build a house. But a life? Doesn't that just plan itself? Is not a man's life determined in the stars? Is he not the victim of fate? Or do we have something to say about it? The poet challenged himself, "Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul." Am I in some measure the "master of my fate"? To ask such questions is to answer them. Our inquiry proves our sense of freedom and our sense of responsibility. Then, how early should I start my plans? The answer is now! Of course, we should plan for today, tomorrow and for eternity. We must determine what to aim for. Whether we are young or old, with the help of the church and God, we may live forever.

You In The Church The Church In You

— form a combination for good. Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the church. So, come let us go into the house of the Lord. Let us support her program of service to humanity, be a faithful worker, a daily bible reader and attend services regularly.

Too often we are inclined to think that anybody who spends a dollar for advertising does it from a purely selfish standpoint. But here, public-spirited, God-worshiping people, are paying each week to insert in this paper a full page, from which they will draw no quick response nor prompt sale. These people are good and humble business men — We owe them our gratitude.

WIN AT BRIDGE
Thought Often Produces Tricks
By Oswald & James Jacoby
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
Today's hand was played in the recent Fort Worth regional. South's four heart opening was standard and most West players bid five diamonds and played it there. The play at five diamonds was also standard. West would ruff the opening heart lead, play two rounds of trumps and a club. After this start declarer would wind up with an overtrick. There would be a brief discussion as to how the slam might have been bid and everyone would agree that it was almost impossible.
At one table West doubled. He was accustomed to playing the double of four hearts for takeout. East was not aware of this and passed.
West opened the king of diamonds and continued after East signaled with the nine. South ruffed the second diamond and really should have pulled trumps right away but he was the sort of devious player who looked for swindles. He led the deuce of spades at trick three.
West looked the dummy over carefully and then played his queen of spades. East played the nine and West really studied the hand this time.
It was well that he did because his next play was the case, it would give us an extra trick."

4-CARD Sense
Q—The bidding has been:
West North East South
1 ♠ 1 ♠ 1 ♠ 1 ♠
2 ♠ 2 ♠ 2 ♠ 2 ♠
3 ♠ 3 ♠ 3 ♠ 3 ♠
4 ♠ 4 ♠ 4 ♠ 4 ♠
A—The king of spades. You want to get rid of the opponents' trumps so you can run club tricks later on.
TODAY'S QUESTION
Instead of bidding one spade West passes your redouble as does North. East bids one spade. What do you do now?

If at First You Don't Succeed,

By ROGER DOUGHTY

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Jean-Rene Gougeon is the kind of man who likes to finish the things he starts, even if he has to wait a year or so to complete the task.

Last year Gougeon, a smiling Frenchman, came to the United States with high hopes of winning the Roosevelt International Trot with Roquepine. Roquepine, it should be noted, is not a French cheese or even a brand of champagne—but a mare.

Through no fault of Roquepine's, Gougeon misjudged the finish line, then realized his error and rallied the champion mare to finish second by a neck to Armbr Flight in the excellent time of 2:31.3 for the mile and a quarter.

Gougeon and Roquepine will be back at Roosevelt Aug. 19 with another shot at winning the International and this time Gougeon promises not to give his running mate a bum steer.

While French President de Gaulle is about as popular in North America as Rap Brown would be at a testimonial dinner for George Lincoln Rockwell, Gougeon, Roquepine and entourage are guaranteed a warm welcome when they invade Long Island. One of the chief reasons for the reception will be the presence of Henri Levesque, the 58-year-old owner, breeder and trainer of Roquepine. Levesque, who claims to be a descendant of the Vikings (he's a Norman), likes to celebrate victories with champagne for everyone in sight, a characteristic that has made him more than popular both in this country and in Europe.

There's only one brand of champagne Levesque never orders and that's the Roederers brand. Seems the Roederers also own one of the top trotting stables in Europe and, as Levesque explains it, "During the last year several of their horses have taken so much purse money that I expected to win with my horses, that I'll be hanged before I give the Roederers money out of my own pocket, too."

Levesque's stables are very much a family affair. His wife, Marie, acts as his secretary while his oldest son Jean, 34, a lawyer, used to be a good amateur driver until an accident impaired his vision. Another son, Henri-Louis, takes care of the family stud farm while a daughter, Jacqueline, is married to an owner-trainer.

Although the Levesque stable is usually stocked with good horses, Roquepine is the star at the moment. The swift mare won her second straight Prix d'Amerique earlier this year and carries the title of European champion.

Roquepine has raced both under saddle and with sulky, but her saddle racing days are long gone. Saddle trotting is quite popular in France, but no place else, and since Monsieur Levesque loves to travel, Roquepine is sticking to the sulky.

If Roquepine wins the International, Levesque promises to keep up the two-year-old tradition of diving into the pool at the nearby Island Inn, fully clothed. The budding tradition was introduced by his friends Gunnar Nordon and Goeta Valentin after their horse, Pluvier III, won the 1965 International.

In Levesque's case it should really be something special. Rumor has it that he's never learned how to swim.

Em Rode Truck to Glory

In thanking all the people who made it possible for him to be the first Negro enshrined in the pro football Hall of Fame, Emullen Tunnell reserves final tribute for the Unknown Truck Driver. He's the guy who picked up Emullen back in 1948 when he was hitchhiking from Philadelphia, undrafted and unwanted by the pros, to ask the New York Giants for a tryout. "Two hundred cars passed," remembers Emullen, "and finally this driver stops and gives me the lift. I don't know who he was. I wish I did, just to thank him."

Curt Flood, on a hitting tear for the St. Louis Cardinals, doesn't concede that hitting in the same batting order with guys like Orlando Cepeda and Roger Maris makes it easier for him: "All it does is make sure you see a lot more strikes because they don't want to walk you with Cepeda coming up to the plate. But it's not easy, I don't care who hits behind you."

Buddy Parker, now selling Texas real estate, ran across Pat Summitt, now a successful broadcaster, and reminded him of their last confrontation. Pat, a rookie with the Detroit Lions, walked into the office of Buddy, their coach, and asked to be traded. "There were tears rolling down your face, too," chided Buddy. "So I got rid of you to the Chicago Cardinals for $500." And from there Pat went on to placekicking renown with the New York Giants before starting his new career.

Jim Brosnan, another ex-athlete, has resorted to words too for a new career. He's a full-time author and shortly will come out with his first novel—"A biographical sketch of the professional baseball player as a folk hero."

Richie Allen, the magnificently constructed Philadelphia Phillies third baseman, once had an offer to become a professional fighter. There was solid basis for it. Richie fought in the amateurs around Pittsburgh and won six out of seven. The loss was a disqualification for fighting after the bell. "But the training," says Richie, "was a drag, especially the road work." Now as a ballplayer, the road trips are a drag.

Joe Black, the former pitcher for the Brooklyn Dodgers, has been mentioned for a post in the baseball commissioner's office. But he prefers to remain on his job as vice-president for Greyhound. "I quit teaching in the first place," he explains, "because I thought the job might help me expand job opportunities for Negroes. If I left now, that would make one less job held by a Negro." He'd like to see it go to George Crowe.

The one major difference Roger Maris sees between the American and National Leagues is in the speed of the top hitters. "Fellows like Clemente, Mays and the Ales," he observes, "get a few extra hits and jack up their averages because they can beat it down to first base faster than the other guys. And then, of course, the infielders in the National League are a lot harder, too." Meaning the balls hit on the ground shoot through them like bullets.

Smart old pros like Jerry Kramer of the Green Bay Packers learn to cope with advancing age gracefully. "Every year," he says, "I wear a little less padding, which gives me a little less weight to carry and makes me look more streamlined. I'm down to no hip pads and the smallest thigh pads."

Between you'n'me, Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs is convinced he got his Ford dealership, first ever given to a Negro, because the Cubs made a sensational turnover from 10th place to pennant challenger... and the financial security it represents made a more relaxed, better ballplayer of him.

SEQUIM, Wash.—(NEA)—On the average, the Olympic Mountains are not much higher than the Great Smokies of western North Carolina. Mt. Olympus, the tallest of these spiny peaks, falls short of 8,000 feet.

Yet even in midsummer the ridges are swaddled in snow and 55 active glaciers grind down through alpine meadows.

The weather probably is the strangest in the United States. Here in the Sequim Valley, it seldom gets below 40 degrees or above 80.

But the rainfall is the strangest thing of all. In Sequim, the average rainfall is 17 inches. The farmers have to irrigate their crops. In Port Angeles, 15 miles away, the rainfall jumps to 24 inches a year. And from there, the natives tell you, you can add one inch of rain for every 100 feet of elevation. On the Pacific side of the mountains, the rainfall exceeds 150 inches a year, creating the famous spidery rain forests.

The weather is so strange a barometer is useless. But this diversity means one thing: the fishing and hunting is the best in the country. In the churning, gray-green rivers (there are about 50) rainbow and Dolly Varden trout grow to broodingnagian size—by eastern standards, at least.

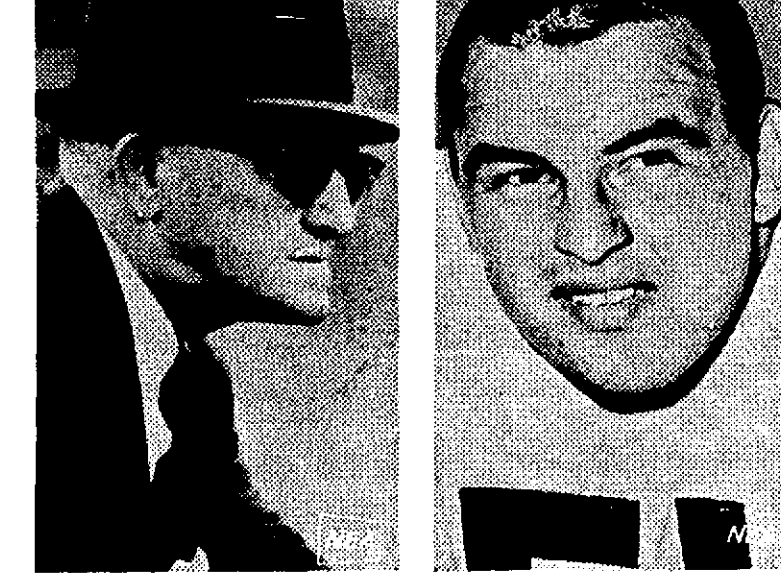

Beligerent anadromous searun rainbows, called steelhead, power their way up through the rapids to spawn before slipping back into salt water again. As anyone who ever caught one can tell you, "you just ain't lived" until you've had a 10-pound steelhead hooked on light tackle.

Deer are so plentiful that highway traffic often has to halt to let them cross. Black bear scar the towering conifers so badly that the timber industry imports professional hunters to thin them out. NFL: ---Chicago Bears

George Halas

GENERAL COMMENT—There's great admiration for George Halas, the venerable septuagenarian, but you've got to face the fact that a muddled coaching staff is helping drag the Bears down. And player unrest, plus untimely retirements, has cut into the quality of the talent.

OFFENSE

PASSING—Started out camp with six quarterbacks. Incumbent Rudy Bukich should be the man, but there are symptoms that scrambler Jack Concannon, ex-Eagle, moves club better. Rating—C+

RECEIVING—Would give the proverbial world for a tight end to replace traded Mike Ditka. Untested rookies are all they have now. With Johnny Morris returning healthy after knee operation, and Jimmy Jones a good deep threat, the wide spots aren't suffering as much. Rating—C

RUNNING—Gale Sayers is absolutely the best in the world. He does it all—trouble is he does it all by himself. Andy Livingston came back fat from knee surgery; Ron Bull got hurt early in camp, leaving Charley Bivins at full. They need a swift Livingston to ease pressure on Sayers. Rating—B+

LINE—Abe Gibran has moved George Seals to tackle, and he looks at home. Otherwise, the same faces—steady Mike Pyle at center, Mike Rabol and Jim Cadile at guards, Bob Wetoska at tackle. Behind them, there are only new faces for support. Don Craftcheck could help. Rating—B

KICKING—Looks like Roger Leclerc has finally been supplanted as placekicker by Rick Duncan and Bruce Alford. For punting, none better than sky-booting Bobby Joe Green.

DEFENSE

LINE—Real trouble mounting adequate pass rush with Doug Atkins gone. Still hope to lure holdout Ed O'Bradovich back. Meanwhile, rookie Loyd Phillips, trifle small, holds down one end and other is a tossup. Lot more settled inside with Dick Evey, Frank Cornish coming strong as tackles. Rating—C

LINEBACKERS—Buttressed in middle by Dick Butkus, with enough character for the cronies they may even get by with using all-pro vet Joe Fortunato as a swing man. Mike Kelly, Rudy Kuechenberg, Jim Bunnell, Doug But-ton all appear capable of playing. Rating—B+

SECONDARY—One big change—Curtis Gentry breaks in at right corner, vacated by Dave Whitsell. If Richie Petitbon and Rosey Taylor, the safeties, and corner man Bennie McRae retain usual form, it'll be a strong unit. Suspect Taylor has lost a step. Rating—B

SUMMARY—Bears not only bothered by being in same Central division with Green Bay, but by real worries in filling key positions in the defensive line, fullback and tight end. There's also an undesirable fluidity at the quarterback post. PREDICTION—Third in Central division.

green. In the fall and winter, the natives live for two things: pheasant hunting and the winter runs of steelhead and salmon.

Local canneries specialize in custom smoking and packing the delicate pink flesh of these brawny fish. The prospect titillates the old ego.

Picture yourself back home at a party, passing a tray of smoked salmon hors d'oeuvres. "Mmm delicious," a friend says. "Just a small one I took in the Strait of Juan de Fuca last season." you say blithely, moving on to the next unsuspecting guest.

'Yachting's Holy Grail'

By W. T. McKEOWN

NEWPORT, R.I.—(NEA)—The sudden-death sailing series that only comes every three years at the most is under way off this little New England port.

The winner will sail against the Australians' Dame Pattie here in mid-September to defend yachting's holy grail—the America's Cup.

Each morning of the final trials, our fastest four yachts and hottest crews head seven miles out into the open Atlantic, where these 70-foot sloops race in pairs—Intrepid vs. Columbia, Constellation vs. American Eagle. Then combinations are changed until all have taken on each other.

Perhaps. But any day when the tall sailboats return to their Newport docks, the New York Yacht Club race committee launch may pull alongside. This may be after the first few races or after several weeks. It may even be a day the crew has won. The committee chairman will step aboard and thank the skipper and crew for their efforts all summer. It will be thanks, but no thanks, and mean that boat then will be eliminated from the trials.

The sentence can come to a craft that has had more than her share of firsts if the committee sees another boat that has been improving faster, handles better, wins the starts and all the following maneuvers that count most.

With sailboats so similar, little things make the difference. Match race strategy doesn't necessarily mean sailing fastest. The trick is simply to stay ahead—even if backwinding the other boat means the long way home—anything to cross the finish line first.

On that evening the launch pulls alongside, it may stop by one, two or three. Any number may be left to keep sailing day by day, trying for success in sailing's biggest league, the result of a summer's unpaid effort plus half a million dollars invested by the backers of each boat.

Intrepid was built this spring after several years of planning and model testing by her designer. She's skippered by previous winning helmsman Bus Mosbacher. Constellation was winner three years ago and was chartered back from her present European owner for this year's test.

Columbia, older still, won against the British in 1958. Now from California, she is skippered again by Briggs Cunningham. American Eagle almost won the defense slot in 1964.

The present favorite is Intrepid with her unique extra rudder and new design by Olin Stephens, creator of all the competitors except Eagle.

But the earlier races through the summer were simply tune-ups for this showdown series. And on the evening the race committee finally decides they've seen enough to pick the defender of the cup the United States has never lost, they make the final harbor rounds. Four boats, three or two—however many are left—they will step aboard and thank. Only then will they head for the remaining yacht. Whistles will blow around the waterfront and several boats are likely to unlimber signal flares to arc out into the dusk.

And through the din, the race chairman will say, as he steps aboard the last remaining yacht and faces her grinning crew, "Congratulations, gentlemen."

Largest Tree? What may be the largest tree in the world is the famous Montezuma cypress in Oaxaca, Mexico. It has a diameter of about 40 feet several feet above the ground, is about 135 feet tall and provides shade for 8,600 square feet of ground at midday.

CHANGING HIS PACE is Stirling Moss, former British racing great. Moss is more used to Grand Prix cars than he is to go-carts. But he figured he'd try it anyway.

Israel and Jordan File More Charges

ALLENBY BRIDGE, Israeli-held Jordan (AP)—Israel and Jordan traded charges of inefficiency in the repatriation of Jordanians to Israeli-held Jordan after only 355 refugees got home Friday.

The Red Cross had said about 1,000 would make the first crossings at what is left of Allenby Bridge and another bridge at Umm As-Shurat, 10 miles to the north.

Jordan has announced that 167,500 of the more than 200,000 Arabs who fled their homeland as Israeli troops seized the western bank of the Jordan River in the June 5-10 war want to be repatriated. But Israel says it doubts whether more than 35,000 can return before the Aug. 31 deadline Israel has set.

The crossings were halted today because Saturday is the Jewish Sabbath. If they are also halted next Saturday, Aug. 26, that would leave just 10 days more for repatriation.

Bitter feelings have already cropped up on both sides. "The Jordanian organization let us down badly," said an Israeli interior ministry spokesman of Friday's repatriation. "It is apparently just not equipped to handle a project of this size."

But Jordanian officials complained that the names of those eligible to cross had been turned in by Israel only Thursday—too late to organize the refugees efficiently.

Most of the first refugees were women, children and bent old men in long robes. This led the secretary of Jordan's refugee committee, Brig. Abdullah Rafee, to comment: "It seems the Israelis have selected only the very young and very old and have taken no chances on letting young men return yet."

Roland Troyon, a Red Cross official, said it would take six months to complete the repatriation at the present rate. But the Red Cross hopes to step up the flow of refugees to 4,000 a day next week.

Hearing Set for Release of Arkansan

SEARCY, Ark. (AP)—Circuit Judge Elmo Taylor has set a hearing Sept. 6 on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed by Carlond Hammond of Searcy, a motel operator charged with stealing $25,000 from Morris Lucia in Baton Rouge, La.

Hammond has been released on $25,000 bond until the hearing, and would be freed pending a possible appeal to the Arkansas Supreme Court if Taylor should grant the writ. Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller has signed extradition papers on Hammond, but Darrell Hickman of Searcy, Hammond's attorney, charged in his petition that Bob Scott, Rockefeller's aide for prison affairs, was not lawfully authorized to conduct an investigation and recommend extradition to the governor.

Hickman also charged that Louisiana's demand papers were not in order in that they did not substantially charge Hammond with a crime. State Printing Contracts for a Year Only

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The state Printing Specifications Review Committee wound up its work Thursday on revising state printing and stationery contracts that are to be let for next year.

Secretary of State Kelly Bryant, a non-voting member of the committee, had asked to have the contracts completed in time to get them into the hands of bidders by Sept. 1. He said this would permit him to open bids Oct. 1.

The contracts will be limited to one year, instead of two years as has been the practice in the past.

The bullet hit the middle of his flight helmet and another went through his right trousers pocket, but he received only scratches. He is shown here preparing to lower a foliage penetrator rescue device used in dense jungles.

Senators Split Votes

WASHINGTON (AP)—Arkansas Sens. J. William Fulbright and John L. McClellan, both Democrats, split their votes Thursday, with Fulbright siding with the 60 senators who voted for approval of the $2.6 billion Foreign Aid bill and McClellan joining the 26 who voted against it.

Says Stephens Is Man for Governor

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Sen. Guy H. "Mutt" Jones of Conway says former Gov. Orval Faubus could recapture the governor's chair next year, but that he believes "the outstanding man" for the office is W. H. "Wilt" Stephens.

Jones said that if Stephens, president and chairman of the board of the Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co., could free himself from his business he "could be and would be elected."

Jones also said he had doubts about the re-election possibilities of Jim Johnson, the defeated Democratic nominee last year.

"I don't know about Jim," Jones said Thursday on a television program taped for showing Sunday. "I don't know about his philosophy, Jim's philosophy and my philosophy are not the same philosophy."

Jones was considered one of Johnson's strongest supporters in 1966, but the senator said he supported Johnson out of friendship, not because of his views. Jones also said he thought U. S. Rep. David Pryor, D-Ark., could be elected governor in 1968.

He added, in answer to a question, that he thought the "machine aura" given the state Democratic party was a manufacture of a press friendly to the administration of Republican Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller. Jones repeated that he would welcome a spot on the ticket as the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant governor.

State Firm Gets Stock Exchange Seat

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Dabbs Sullivan, Trulock and Co., Inc., of Little Rock and Pine Bluff acquired a seat on the New York Stock Exchange Thursday, becoming the first Arkansas-based investment firm ever to hold one.

Walter Trulock III, president of the company, said the seat was acquired from Robert Bollt, who became a vice president, director and stockholder of the firm in the transaction.

Details of the transaction were not revealed, but one seat sold recently for $425,000.

Lt. Gov. Maurice Britt, representing Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller at a news conference, read a telegram in which the governor called the acquisition "an important step in Arkansas' business progress."

Trulock said that Memphis, with branch offices of 12 New York-based investment houses, didn't have a single seat on the exchange, as is the case for Oklahoma, Mississippi, Indiana and 12 other states.

The company will not have its own man on the exchange floor, Trulock said, but will continue to be represented by Vilas and Hickey, a firm that handled the dealings for the Dabbs Sullivan Co., and Trulock — Co., on a correspondent basis before the merger of the two March 1, 1967.

Trulock said customers of the company would notice no difference in the handling of their business, but that the firm itself would profit through savings on floor brokerage, correspondent and clearance fees, which are lower for members than for non-members.

There are 1,366 seats on the exchange, but the number of member firms is only about 650, because many of the firms own more than one seat.

Dabbs Sullivan, Trulock, with 24 registered representatives, is the state's largest securities firm.

Woman Dies in Michigan Explosion

MARSHALL, Mich. (AP)—A woman was killed and several other persons escaped injury today when an explosion ripped out the front of a restaurant in downtown Marshall.

Police identified the victim as Mrs. Nola Puyear, wife of William Puyear, the proprietor of the restaurant. The husband and three customers in the Tasty Sandwich shop were unhurt.

No fire followed the blast which ripped out glass windows in the two story building in the central Michigan city.

Marshall police said the state police crime laboratory and the FBI had been informed of the blast.

There was an unconfirmed report that Mrs. Puyear was opening a package she had just received through the mail when the blast occurred.

Thinks State Has Outgrown Constitution

HARRISON, Ark. (AP)—Arkansas has outgrown its 1874 constitution and is entitled to a new one, a member of the state Constitutional Revision Study Commission told a civic club here Thursday.

Joe Neff Basore of Cherokee Village, an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination last year, said businessmen had found that the present constitution limited development.

Basore, an officer of the Cherokee Village Development Corp., said "new good" had been added to the constitution by amendments, but that the patchwork was "inferior, inadequate and unsatisfactory."

Shoppers See Couple Wed at Boone, N.C.

BOONE, N.C. (AP)—Walter Clark and Sharon K. Stewart, both 18, were wed Wednesday in front of the meat counter of a Boone supermarket.

The Bristol, Tenn., couple needed witnesses so Justice of the Peace Dave Hodges marched them from his office into the nearby supermarket and performed the ceremony with two shoppers as witnesses.

The solemnity of the moment was slightly marred when an elderly lady rounded the corner of an aisle and said, "Sir, where are the jar lids?"

Red Newspapers Ordered Stopped

HONG KONG (AP)—Three pro-Communist newspapers ordered by a Hong Kong magistrate to stop publication published a one-page joint "defiance edition" today.

Government sources said the court order was not served on the three papers until early today. Legal experts speculated whether the joint edition might be within the law if it came out before the order.

There was also a question whether Hong Kong authorities could do much about the one-page edition since it was put out in the Portuguese colony.

Few Recall What the Big Ship Did

By GEORGE W. WILBUR
Associated Press Writer
NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—A great and gallant ship bearing one of the most hallowed names in U.S. naval history sits forlornly at the Norfolk Naval Base, her towering, rust-spattered hull in sharp contrast to the gleaming ships of the Atlantic Fleet.

She flies no flags. The white light of cutting torches reflects dimly from her sharply sloping sides. Cranes noisily lift house-size chunks of steel plate from her decks and superstructure.

The fading name on her sternplate reads: Franklin.

Visitors to the base on Hampton Roads pay scant attention to the hulk of "Big Ben." Many of them are too young to recall the valiant role played by the aircraft carrier in World War II. Only a few remember her as the most heavily damaged major U.S. warship ever to return to port under her own power.

What the Franklin experienced as a result of enemy action was repeated on a lesser scale recently when the carrier Forrestal suffered heavy damage as the result of a shipboard mishap off Vietnam.

But while the Franklin is a derelict doomed to destruction, the Forrestal will be returned, probably to Norfolk, to be restored to fighting trim.

The Franklin, an Essex-class carrier, was launched at Newport News Oct. 14, 1943. She was 872-feet long at her flight deck and carried a crew of 3,448 officers and men.

During 1944 and early 1945 the Franklin ranged up and down the Pacific as the United States stepped up its island-hopping campaign against the Japanese.

In June 1944 she launched planes in support of the invasion of Guam and Rota in the Marianas. In July her aircraft pounded Japanese troops on Iwo Jima and sank four enemy ships. When Gen. Douglas MacArthur returned to the Philippines, the Franklin provided air cover.

Before dawn on March 19, 1945, the Franklin had moved to within 50 miles of the Japanese mainland—closer than any U.S. carrier had been before—and launched a fighter sweep against Honshu and a bombing raid against shipping in Kobe Harbor.

Suddenly, a single enemy plane pierced the cloud cover and made a low-level run on the Franklin. Two armor-piercing bombs tore through the ship's flight deck, knocking out shipboard communications and igniting fires that triggered a chain explosion of bombs, rockets and ammunition.

Within minutes the carrier lay dead in the water, radio contact gone, and listing 13 degrees to starboard. Many of her crew were blown overboard or driven off by intense heat. Casualties totaled 724 men killed and 265 wounded. Two of her crew were later awarded the Medal of Honor.

The Franklin was a barely-floating hulk of red hot metal. But a skeleton force of officers and men was determined to keep her afloat.

After the major fires had subsided the Franklin was taken in tow by the cruiser Pittsburgh. But before she reached Pearl Harbor she was proceeding under her own power.

Following a brief cleanup job, the carrier embarked on the long voyage to the U.S. mainland.

Still listing, she entered New York Harbor April 28, 1945. She was given a tumultuous reception by thousands of people who watched from the city's shoreline and bridges.

The war ended before the Franklin could return to action. She was decommissioned at Bayonne, N.J., Feb. 17, 1947.

Faubus Says 26 Listed for the Ax

HUNTSVILLE, Ark. (AP)—The Madison County Record published by former Gov. Orval Faubus says "reliable sources" report that a list has been compiled of 26 key figures in state government who art to "get the ax."

The Record also said Truman Altenbaumer, executive director of the state Republican Party, had demanded that 50 per cent of the employees of the Forestry Department be dismissed and replaced by Republican patronage selections.

The Record said Altenbaumer approached Fred Lange, who retired as director of the department July 15.

Lange said at Hot Springs that Altenbaumer did not approach him demanding any jobs.

Lange said he talked with Altenbaumer, but that Altenbaumer did not demand 50 per cent or even 10 per cent of the jobs.

Asked if Altenbaumer had asked for consideration in any openings that might come in the department, Lange said, "That's exactly right."

The paper said the 26 state employees are headed for dismissal "as rapidly as the WR administration can get to them."

The Record, which was published Thursday, mentioned only two names—that of Col. Carl Hinkle Jr., executive director of the Arkansas Industrial Development Commission who submitted his resignation Wednesday, and Col. Carl Miller, second in command in the State Police.

The paper said Miller was asked twice to submit his resignation two months ago by Clark "Trusty" Ralston, chairman of the State Police Commission and an appointee of Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller.

The Record said the state Forestry Commission held a meeting on Altenbaumer's alleged demand and stood firm against it. The paper said, however, that aides in the governor's office have called district supervisors directly, bypassing the forestry office, and making hiring and firing demands on them.

The Record said Rockefeller will reportedly attempt to gain control of the state Bank Board because Rockefeller "and his campaign managers have promised numerous groups of supporters that they could have the positions."

The paper said that, barring unforeseen events, Rockefeller could not gain control of the board until December of the third year of his administration, but that the governor's supporters are impatient.

"They do not want to wait three years for the fulfillment of the promises," the paper said.

Memphis to Vote on Liquor by the Drink

MEMPHIS (AP)—Memphis and Shelby County voters rejected a proposal to legalize liquor-by-the-drink Thursday in Tennessee's first referendum under a new state law.

Returns from all 196 precincts showed 52,240 in favor of legalization to 61,827 opposed. Only one fourth of the county's registered voters cast ballots. The referendum was held under a law which was amended by the 1967 Tennessee legislature to allow the state's four largest cities to decide whether mixed drinks would be legalized.

Another vote is scheduled Sept. 28 in Nashville, Knoxville and Chattanooga have not set dates for referenda.

All four cities presently allow package sales of whisky, Los Angeles.

186 Missions Flown By U.S. Planes

SAIGON (AP)—Stepped-up air raids on North Vietnam have cost the United States three more warplanes, the U.S. Command disclosed today.

The command revealed the losses by merely announcing a higher total—647—of U.S. warplanes shot down over the North so far in the war. It did not say where or when the planes were downed.

The announcement followed a day in which U.S. pilots flew 186 missions against the North—second highest daily total so far—but there was no mention of losses in Friday's raids.

Meanwhile, U.S. B52 bombers ripped up more of the A Shau Valley today in their long campaign of trying to demolish a major military base which the North Vietnamese have built inside South Vietnam's northwest border.

A 25-mile road still brings men and supplies into the base though Laos despite more than 50 previous B52 raids aimed at the camouflaged enemy installations and hundreds of fighter-bomber strikes.

Friday was the fourth day this month in which U.S. fliers logged a record or near-record number of missions. The record of 197 was set Aug. 3.

As for losses, the Command often delays reports of a downed plane when the North Vietnamese are not aware the plane was lost, possibly because it crashed far out at sea.

Although a military spokesman said no special significance could be attached to the number of missions Friday it was evident an all-out campaign has been ordered against North Vietnamese supply channels.

The ground war remained generally quiet as it has for almost two months but scattered and frequently sharp skirmishes ranged up and down South Vietnam. The known casualties from reported actions were nine Americans dead and 99 wounded while the Communist forces suffered 135 dead from infantry, air, artillery and helicopter fire-power, the U.S. Command said.

The air armada targeted at the North mostly hit targets from Hanoi south to the demilitarized zone but some flights went into the "Iron Triangle" of defenses around the Red capital and its sister port city of Haiphong. Intruder jets from carriers streaked in to hit the rail siding at Ngoc Kuyet, between the two cities.

The day's toll included at least 108 river barges sunk or damaged, 45 trucks destroyed or damaged and 12 rail cars destroyed or damaged.

There were no report of raids close to the Red Chinese frontier. Raids near the border earlier this week touched off controversy in Washington.

Hero's Son to Enter Ministry

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Colin Kelly, III, son of America's first hero of World War II, will enter a divinity school here next month to study for the Episcopal ministry.

Kelly, 27, will enter the Philadelphia Divinity School, his family said Thursday. Kelly is a captain in an armored unit at Ft. Riley, Kan., and has applied for the chaplains corps.

Kelly's mother, now Mrs. J. Watson Pedlow, lives in nearby Media, Pa.

His father, Capt. Colin P. Kelly Jr., died in the Philippines three days after the bombing of Pearl Harbor. The pilot of a bomber that damaged a Japanese cruiser, he stayed with his plane as it crashed after ordering the other six crewmen to bail out, and was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross.
